Vertex Pharmaceuticals

Michelle A. Williams, Sc.D.
Dean of the Faculty
Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health

There are two objectives of the Biomedical Science Careers Student Conference. The primary objective is to provide over 1,000 African-American, Hispanic/Latino and American Indian/Alaska Native students/fellows with an opportunity to network with advisors/role models from the basic and clinical sciences, medicine, public health, academia and the biopharmaceutical industry. These advisors/role models will encourage students/fellows to complete advanced studies and provide concrete advice and information on available resources, professional opportunities and career paths in biomedical and other science-related fields. The second objective is to enable student participants to meet, inspire and network with one another.

Student participants should be seriously interested in or currently studying in medicine, biomedical science or other science-related fields, such as chemistry, physics, biology, nursing, dentistry, pharmacy, engineering, biotechnology, physical therapy, public health, allied health or environmental science.

Students must pay for their own travel and lodging to attend this conference. There is no registration fee and meals will be provided during the conference.

Deadline for applications is February 15, 2018. Applications should be emailed to ahmed_aziz@hms.harvard.edu. Click on the link below to fill out the 2018 application:
