

FLU IS HERE

Hospitals nationwide are experiencing higher-than-usual activity due to a particularly harsh flu season.

The number of patients in the hospital for flu-like illness nationally has doubled in the past two weeks and is higher than in recent years.

If you experience a fever of 100 degrees or more, a cough and/or sore throat, please call your doctor for guidance before going to the emergency department.

February is when the flu season is usually the worst, so it's not too late to get a flu shot!
